John D Rockefeller, the richest person to ever live in the modern era and one of the most powerful men in US history, has a complicated legacy. Part of what he is remembered for is his impact on the education system. Rockefeller's influence led to the implementation of standardized tests like the SAT, as well as an education system that created workers, not thinkers.

Much has been written and said about how Rockefeller is an evil man who remade education to create mindless workers to serve him.

In this video we examine Rockefeller's approach to education, and whether his motives truly were evil, or if he was simply incompetent when it came to education.

Yes, there was malice thought behind the mandatory educational system. He understood what modern slavery could bring to the table. It made his empire stronger. He was the slave master of his time.

Our children need to think beyond their  job and not be caught up in this propaganda.

Why attribute to stupidity what can be attributed to malevolence? Rockefeller was exceptionally smart, ruthless and machiavellian in business, yet you think he was just stupid and idealist when doing social engineering?

They want us to believe that it's because of stupidly, using it as a scapegoat. But the ones who are awake understand the existance of bloodline family dinasties and secret societies behind the curtains.

These tests are garbage, I failed my SAT and in the 70s we took a test to determine what field of employment to go into, they said I should be a meat cutter. At age 40 I became a lawer and own a construction company, both doing very well.

Most people don't know that Rockefeller's money was made in home heating oil. He came before the mass produced automobile.

Rockefeller may have said that, but it was likely in his later years after already exploiting every single thing he laid his eyes on throughout his life. He did some good things but he was "No Humanitarian", he was a greedy money-monger who did irreparable damage motivated with ill intent. Medicine would be leaps and bounds ahead of its current state had he not taken control of it, and that applies to the education system as well. Nature has all the remedies for any ailment mankind will ever have to deal with, and that knowledge has been erased because of Rockefeller. It was a crime against humanity.

Imagine being born with so much money, a life set on easy mode, and then just ruining life for everyone. I always associate him with education, but apparently he is also behind big pharma and big oil. total nightmare, a trinity of evil. how can one person donk up so much.

To me Rockefeller was not so much stupid as myopic and short-sighted.  He could never have anticipated that the education system he chose would become entirely irrelevant the United States would cease to be a manufacturing powerhouse, nor the way the rise of automation would ensure that even if the factories came back to the united states, the number of jobs it created would be minimal. Because of this failure to anticipate and the way the public would clamor to uphold his mistake he chose to build a education system around the Prussian model, when the montessori system really would have been the better choice.
